

Eugene Sue (1804 - 1857) wrote a novel entitled, "THE WANDERING JEW". The story is about the very wealthy French Protestant RENNEPONT FAMILY.

LE JUIF ERRANT "The Wandering Jew"

The Rennepont family lost its position and most of its wealth during the French persecution of the Protestants (after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685). A small fortune was given to a Jewish banker immediately before the Renneponts dispersed all over Europe and Asia, and this fortune has grown into a huge sum, through the miracle of compound interest. In 1682, the Rennepont family members each got a bronze medal telling them to meet back in Paris 150 years later, at which time the fortune will be divided among the surviving members. So much time has passed, however, that almost none of the still-living Renneponts have any idea why they need to come to Paris. They nevertheless set out from India, Siberia, America, France, and elsewhere to make their way to rue Saint-François #3 in Paris by February 13, 1832.

The members of the family are not only dispersed all over the world, but also all over the social ladder, as laborers, factory owners, princes (in India!) and the independently wealthy.

The JESUITS have heard of this huge fortune and want to get it for themselves. Two Jesuits (Rodin and Père d'Aigrigny) and their many recruited accomplices are in charge of obtaining the money for the the Society of Jesus and dispossessing the Rennepont family. Their plan is to have only the unwitting Gabriel, the Jesuit missionary, show up to claim the fortune. Since he is a monk and can have no possessions of his own, the fortune will go to the wily Jesuits. Gabriel's entry into the order is not accidental - it is his pious mother, manipulated by the Jesuits, who persuaded him to become a Jesuit. The Jesuits have spies and henchmen all over the world, from the remote Americas to Siberia, and they use them to put obstacles in the paths of the Renneponts as they make their way back to Paris. Moreover, they also spy on each other, demonstrating that they don't even trust each other.

- Gabriel, Jesuit missionary in America, Rennepont. No obstacles, because he is supposed to collect the fortune.
- Dagobert, friend of the Rennepont family and guardian of the orphans Rose and Blanche. Has his papers and the medal stolen by Morok, an animal tamer and accomplice of the Jesuits. Also has his horse, Jovial, killed by Morok's panther. Forced to travel on foot without papers and arrested for vagrancy. Freed by Hérodiade. Lured to a false meeting with a notary pretending to have messages from Général Simon.
- Rose and Blanche, twin Rennepont orphans coming from Siberia. Since they are under Dagobert's protection, they are also arrested and put in jail for vagrancy. Also, they are put in a convent by Dagobert's wife while Dagobert is at the notary meeting. She is made to swear by the Jesuits that she will not tell Dagobert where they are.
- Général Simon, father of Rose and Blanche, is a Rennepont, unknown to his daughters. Général Simon has been so long exiled from France and his family that he doesn't even know he has daughters. He thinks he has one son. He does not arrive for the meeting, either, although his situation is less clear than that of the others.
- Djalma, Indian prince Rennepont, coming from the Far East. In Java, Djalma is accused of belonging to a murderous sect called the "Etrangleurs," who closely resemble the Thuggee. One of the Jesuit henchmen tattoos Djalma with the Etrangleur tattoo on the inside of his arm while he is asleep. Djalma tries to prove that he is not an Etrangleur, but because of the tattoo is thrown in jail. This causes him to miss the boat to Paris. After finally arriving in Paris, he is poisoned by Farighea (whom he had thought was his friend), so that he goes into a prolonged sleep. The Jesuits then kidnap him.
- Jacques Rennepont, Parisian workman. He was given papers by his father that explain his fortune, but since he doesn't know how to read or write, he is unable to use them. The Jesuits send a money lender to him; when he cannot repay the loan, he is thrown into debtor's prison.
- François Hardy, progressive factory owner, Paris. He is betrayed by his best friend who, under the influence of Père d'Aigrigny (Jesuit Father Pere d' Aigrigny), lures Hardy to central France, ensuring that he will not arrive on February 13.
- Adrienne de Cardoville, independently wealthy, Paris. Lives with her aunt, who is a former mistress of Father d'Aigrigny. The aunt, the abbot Aigrigny, and a Jesuit doctor Baleinier connive to put Adrienne in an insane asylum that happens to be next to the convent where Rose and Blanche are trapped.

Only Gabriel shows up to the meeting, but at the last minute Hérodiade makes an appearance. Gabriel recognizes her from when she rescued him in the Americas. Hérodiade goes to a drawer and pulls out a codicil that explains that the parties have three and a half months from February 13 to present themselves. Upon this unexpected turn of events the Père d'Aigrigny is fired, and Rodin replaces him. He decides to take more drastic action by using cholera to annihilate some of the Rennepont family. He maneuvers Rose, Blanche, and Jacques in front of the cholera epidemic and thereby rids himself of them.

With François Hardy, Rodin shows him how Hardy's best friend had betrayed him. He also arranges for Hardy's mistress to leave for the Americas, and has Hardy's treasured factory burn to the ground (all this on the same day). Hardy takes refuge among the Jesuits, who persuade him to enter their order. Djalma falls in love with Adrienne, so the Jesuits use his passion to destroy him: they make Djalma think that Adrienne has been unfaithful, and he poisons himself. But he dies slowly and drinks only half the bottle, so there's plenty of time for Adrienne to find out what he's done and poison herself, too. On the day of the second meeting, none of the Renneponts show up (Gabriel having quit the Jesuits), and Rodin (Jesuit Father Rodin) alone presents himself. But Samuel, the guardian of the house, has realized the injustices that have taken place. He brings the coffins of all the Renneponts back to show Rodin his wickedness, and he burns the testament that would have given Rodin access to the money.

In Europe, the French people like Blaise Pascal, Admiral Coligny, General Lafayette and others knew how wicked was the SOCIETY OF JESUS (JESUIT ORDER). The French people also knew that the Jesuits are criminal under priest robe. The prove that the French people knew how wicked the Jesuits are, let us consult men of science and mathematics Blaise Pascal, wrote "The Provincial Letters".

The Jesuits killed the Renneponts Family to acquired their vast wealth. Also, the Jesuits killed three wealthy Jews, they were John Jacob Astor, Benjamin Guggenheim and Isador Strauss who were aboard the famous cruise ship Titanic. The Jesuits planned and deliberately sunk the Titanic. Because, Astor, Guggenheim and Strauss opposed the creation of a central bank in the United States. One year after the Titanic sunk, the Federal Reserved Bank was established to finance the Russian Communist Revolution and the Second 30-Years War (WWI and WWII). The culprits were Fr. Frank Browne (Jesuit Provincial Superior in Ireland), Jesuit Father General Franz Xavier Wernz and the Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Capt. Edward Smith. Now, the Jesuits possessed the wealth of John Jacob Astor (the original owner of the New York's Empire State Building). Same as to what happened to the Renneponts Family. Congressman Louis T. Mcfadden of Pennsylvania made a privelege speech inside the U.S. Congress that the Federal Reserve Bank is illegal and corrupt.

To cover-up the real historical events that the Jesuits were the master-minds in the sinking of Titanic, the Jesuits via Illuminati (Hollywood Movie Industries) made a different version of the Titanic which became a love story.

Aside from the HOLY BIBLE, the only vital source of information to expose the evil works of the Society Of Jesus (Jesuit Order) and the Holy See (Vatican) under the banner of Roman Catholicism is :

The Community Of World Historians is now encouraging many people to read and research world historical facts and we assure the people that by the grace of GOD Almighty they will also arrive to the firm and final facts that the Society Of Jesus now controlling the Holy See is the
